

Faculty Scholarship at Whitworth University
May 2012-May 2013

New Scholar on Campus

As you read through the pages of this booklet, you'll catch a brief glimpse of the vast assortment of scholarly works that Whitworth University's faculty produced in 2012-13. Whitworth's commitment to academic excellence is reflected in its faculty's wide-ranging scholarship — from books on theology to laboratory experiments and fieldwork resulting in journal articles, from presentations at national conferences to original works of art and music shared with an appreciative public.

Scholarly activity is viewed at Whitworth as complementary to teaching rather than in competition with it. In fact, Whitworth's professors engage students fully in the process of discovery and dissemination of new knowledge and in the creation of original contributions to their fields.

This year marks the installation of Whitworth's new provost, Caroline J. Simon, Ph.D. We are excited to share with you a portion of the scholarship she has brought to our university. Please take a moment to meet our new scholar on campus.

Simon's latest book is Bringing Sex into Focus: The Quest for Sexual Integrity (IVP Academic, 2012). She has authored, co-authored and edited four other books: Introduction to Ethics (Rowman & Littlefield, 2010), Can Hope Endure? A Historical Case Study in Christian Higher Education (Eerdmans, 2005), Mentoring for Mission: Nurturing New Faculty at Church-Related Colleges (Eerdmans, 2003), and The Disciplined Heart: Love, Destiny and Imagination (Eerdmans, 1997).

Simon has also published more than two dozen articles on topics ranging from virtue ethics and human affection to church-related higher education. Examples include "Love," in Cambridge Companion to C. S. Lewis (Cambridge University Press, 2010); "Redemptive Engagement with Cultural Conceptions of Sexuality," in International Academy of Marital Spirituality Review (Spring 2009); "Friendship's Role in Coming to Know as We Are Known," in Christian Reflections (Spring 2008); and "Vengeance, Forgiveness and Redemption in Mystic River," in Faith, Philosophy and Film: Big Ideas on the Big Screen (InterVarsity Press, 2007). Simon's most recent publication is a personal essay, "Enough," in Stone Voices (Summer 2013), a journal that connects spirituality and the arts. The essay explores the desert paintings of Georgia O'Keefe, Benedictine spirituality, and the process of grieving.

Faculty Scholarship at Whitworth

Who We Are The Whitworth faculty includes 159 Christian teacher-scholars. These committed scholars engage in research, writing and creative performance to advance their understanding of the world, enrich their teaching and to share their discoveries with the world and to bring new discoveries into their classrooms. Organizations beyond our campus have recognized the high quality of our faculty scholarship, and they support Whitworth research programs. Whitworth faculty members have received research grants from a broad range of organizations, including the Fund for the Improvement of Post-Secondary Education, the M.J. Murdock Charitable Trust, NASA, the National Endowment for the Arts, and the National Science Foundation.

What We Do Whitworth faculty members are engaged in a wide array of research, creative production and performance and scholarly projects. The work of our natural scientists includes imparting water-solubility to organometallic molybdenum complexes as well as researching the conflicting visions of metaphysics, epistemology and ideology in space policy debates. Scholars in the humanities publish poetry, analyze the history of the Stone-Campbell movement, research the fight for prohibition and civil rights in the Pacific Northwest, and delve into mathematical models of human sleep and insomnia. Social scientists measure the success and failure of online political movements, examine relational maximization and affectionate communication in romantic relationships, and question the effects of Kony 2012 on university student perceptions of Africa. And faculty members in the arts perform, contribute to exhibits, create arrangements for jazz ensembles, and direct staged readings in Spokane theatres.

Why We Do It At Whitworth, teaching and scholarship are not seen as separate and competing spheres. Faculty scholarship models lifelong learning for our students while keeping faculty members immersed in the joy of discovery and connected to the broader conversations of their academic disciplines. Some faculty conduct research and write monographs with their undergraduate students in special research programs that mentor students for graduate study. Some address disciplinary problems from explicitly Christian viewpoints as a unique contribution to discussions in the wider academy. And some aid in the integration of new knowledge into governmental policies and social programs to serve humanity. Regardless of faculty members' motivation, their dedication leads to a common outcome: the discovery and synthesis of knowledge to serve humanity.

Why We Want You to Know about It The purpose of this annual publication is to share some of the ways in which Whitworth's faculty contributes to the world of knowledge. In the following pages you will read about recent publications, scholarly presentations, professional service, research grants, fellowships and awards. While this publication is not comprehensive, it does highlight the breadth and depth of faculty scholarship at Whitworth as it provides a small taste of the fruit of the productive work of the university's teacher-scholars.
