Professional Interests & Faith

ASP attracts emerging leaders with an interest in connecting their passion for public policy, law, humanitarian causes and social campaigns, economics, or international development with the work of national institutions and global organizations centered here in our nation's capital. What passions and professional interests are attracting you to Washington, D.C. and how does your Christian faith help shape your response to these convictions?

Experiential Learning

ASP is an experiential learning program which seeks to advance your professional development and sense of vocation through your participation in our internship program, mentorship program, and the regular interactions with Washington leaders that take place as part of our field research. What questions about your own calling and career do you bring to ASP and how will you use the experiential features of ASP to serve you in this process?

Résumé

Please provide a current and detailed résumé. Questions? See the Career Services Office in the HUB!

Submit your application by to Nick Vasiloff (nvasiloff@whitworth.edu) via email OR in-person (Hendrick Hall) by the following deadline: Nov. 15
