Whitworth University 2009-10 Annual Report

President's Message

Whitworth donors were very generous in their giving during the last fiscal year, donating a total of $8.2 million to the university. As an economist, I've been trained to use all kinds of adjectives to describe financial trends and circumstances. The best word I can come up with to describe the global economy during the 12 months covered in this annual report is "ugly." In spite of this ugly period, which, ironically, is being described as the "great" recession, donors gave generously and, in many cases, sacrificially to this university. On behalf of our students, faculty and staff, I thank you.

It was a year in which Whitworth benefitted from all kinds of gifts. Donations to The Whitworth Fund, which we depend upon for our operating budget, supported student scholarships, faculty/staff salaries, maintenance of the grounds and other vital needs. While giving to The Whitworth Fund fell short of our goal, you can rest assured that we wrung every bit of value out of each dollar we received. It was a particularly good year for giving to The Whitworth Foundation, thanks in part to a large bequest from a former Whitworth trustee. Bequests that aren't designated for other purposes go directly to our endowment and provide revenue in perpetuity to the university. The more revenue Whitworth receives from its endowment, the less we have to generate from tuition. The more we can control tuition increases, the more accessible Whitworth is to students from diverse economic backgrounds. Can I get an "Amen!"? If you haven't done so already, I hope you will consider including Whitworth in your estate plans. Many donors also made designated gifts to projects that are important to them and to the university. Chief among those projects is the William P. and Bonnie V. Robinson Science Hall, which now graces the skyline at the center of campus.

I am thrilled that such an important building for Whitworth will forever bear the Robinsons' names. Bill and Bonnie have richly blessed Julie and me as we've transitioned to Whitworth. And as you well know, they have provided extraordinary leadership to Whitworth for the past 17 years. One of Bill's greatest contributions has been to clarify and communicate Whitworth's distinctive mission with such passion that it is deeply imbedded in the university culture and owned by the community. That is a true gift. It provides a solid foundation on which we can build a bold vision for extending Whitworth's mission in new and exciting ways. One of our top priorities in the year ahead will be to outline that vision and develop a clearly defined strategic plan for the next five years. We have formed the new University Council, with representatives from across campus, to provide leadership and accountability in the strategic-planning process. But we also will engage trustees, donors, alumni and friends in the process. We will benefit from your ideas and we will depend upon your support. I hope you will join us in this critically important effort.

In September, during my first Fall Convocation address as Whitworth's president, I explored Philippians 2: 1-5, in which Paul exhorts his readers to take on the attitude of Christ. In particular, Paul calls us to identify with the amazing humility revealed by the Son of God in descending from heaven to take on human form, even the form of a servant. Dear friends of Whitworth, you humble us with your prayers, your service and your financial gifts. They are treasured marks of trust placed in this university, and we pledge to be worthy of that trust by stewarding your gifts well, and by using them to serve our students and to advance Whitworth's noble mission. I can't thank you enough for your support.

2009-10 Year in Review

July 27, 2009

Participation in Christ: An Entry into Karl Barth's 'Church Dogmatics' (Westminster John Knox Press, 2009), released by Associate Professor of Theology Adam Neder, offers a fresh perspective on a central theme in Barth's theology.

Aug. 19, 2009

Whitworth University once again ranks among the 10 best regional universities and best values in the West in U.S. News & World Report's annual America's Best Colleges guide, which this year also recognizes Whitworth for extraordinary undergraduate teaching.

Sept. 4, 2009

Donald Miller, author of the bestselling book Blue Like Jazz, speaks to a packed Cowles Auditorium about the relevance of Christian faith in everyday life. Miller's visit is part of a national tour promoting his new book, A Million Miles in a Thousand Years: What I Learned While Editing My Life (Thomas Nelson, 2009).

Sept. 10, 2009

Whitworth appoints noted scholar Lawrence Burnley as assistant vice president of intercultural relations. In the newly created role, Burnley will provide leadership in strategic planning, curriculum development and faculty training in support of the university's goal of producing interculturally competent graduates.

Nov. 9, 2009

Whitworth takes a major step forward in ensuring the continued success of its thriving science program by breaking ground for a new $32 million biology/chemistry building. The science hall will be the first phase of a planned $53 million project to revamp the university's science facilities. In April 2010, the Whitworth University Board of Trustees announces that the building will be named the William P. and Bonnie V. Robinson Science Hall.

Dec. 21, 2009

As enrollment in the sciences continues to decline at schools nationwide, Whitworth, which has bucked those trends, wins a $587,494 grant from the National Science Foundation to support its ongoing growth in science majors. Whitworth is the only liberal arts university in the Northwest to receive this type of funding, which gives underrepresented students such as women, ethnic minorities and the disabled the help they need to pursue the sciences.

Feb. 3, 2010

Building on more than 30 years of experience leading study programs in Central America, Whitworth expands study-abroad opportunities by opening its new Costa Rica Center, the university's first international study center. The new site, which opens for classes in fall 2010, advances a long-term university goal to increase cross-cultural learning opportunities for students while adding affordable capacity for anticipated enrollment growth.

Feb. 29, 2010

Whitworth captures a top 40 spot and becomes the highest-ranked school in the Pacific Northwest in Kiplinger's annual rankings of the 50 best values among private liberal arts colleges and universities in the U.S. The university, at No. 39 in the magazine's 2009-10 rankings, is ranked ahead of all but three of the other private universities on the West Coast.

Oct. 21, 2009

Ryan Crocker, former U.S. ambassador to Iraq and recipient of the Medal of Freedom, speaks to an overflowing Robinson Teaching Theatre about the foreign policy lessons he learned while serving in that tumultuous region. The following day, Whitworth Academic Dean Michael Le Roy, '89, leads faculty members Raja Tanas, Jennifer Holsinger, John Yoder and Dale Soden in a panel discussion about U.S. foreign policy opportunities and challenges in the Middle East.

Oct. 22, 2009

The Fulbright Program announces that Whitworth is a top producer of students who received Fulbright awards in 2009-10. Whitworth is the only private institution in Washington state to be recognized. Since 2000, 10 Whitworth students and four faculty members have been selected as Fulbright scholars.

Nov. 3, 2009

The Whitworthian wins a prestigious Associate Collegiate Press Online Pacemaker Award, and is the only school from the Pacific Northwest represented in its category. In May 2010, The Whitworthian is recognized as one of the top student newspapers in the country by winning first place in its division at the 2009 National Mark of Excellence Awards, sponsored by the Society of Professional Journalists.

Nov. 7, 2009

Lee Konitz – alto saxophonist, jazz legend, and winner of the 2009 National Endowment for the Arts Jazz Master Award – performs in concert with the Whitworth Jazz Ensemble at the Fox Theater, in downtown Spokane. A few months later, for the seventh time in the past 14 years, the jazz ensemble is named outstanding group in the college/university division at the 2010 Lionel Hampton International Jazz Festival.

March 16, 2010

Whitworth appoints Bob Beatty, an e-commerce expert with significant academic, business and military leadership experience, as dean of the university's School of Global Commerce & Management.

April 9, 2010

Whitworth Professor of Theology Jim Edwards, '67, releases a groundbreaking new book, The Hebrew Gospel and the Development of the Synoptic Tradition (Eerdmans, 2009). In the book, Edwards challenges the long-held "Q hypothesis" and traditional views of the synoptic gospels by proposing that there was a Hebrew Christian gospel – not a "Q" source of Jesus' sayings – that served as the foundation for the gospels that followed.

April 17, 2010

The Whitworth University Board of Trustees announces the appointment of Beck A. Taylor, Ph.D., as the university's 18th president. Taylor, a respected scholar and economist, previously served as dean of the Brock School of Business at Samford University, in Birmingham, Ala. Taylor assumes his duties as president on July 1 and is inaugurated on Oct. 15, 2010.

May/June 2010

Bill Robinson concludes his final year as Whitworth's president with commencement activities and a celebration banquet in his honor at the Davenport Hotel in downtown Spokane on May 16. He officially steps down June 30. During Robinson's 17-year tenure, the number of freshman applications to Whitworth increased 565 percent, enrollment grew 60 percent, and student academic profiles and selectivity steadily improved. More than $83 million in campus improvements were made, and financial support from alumni and friends grew steadily, contributing to an increase of nearly $75 million in the university's endowment before the worldwide economic downturn.

The Numbers

Whitworth is in good financial health, thanks in large part to the 4,069 generous donors who gave more than $8.2 million in the past fiscal year, an increase of 14 percent from the year before. Two of the largest sources for this total include payments on past pledges ($1.2 million) and outright gifts of $4.6 million. Gifts designated to Robinson Science Hall, the endowment and The Whitworth Foundation, as well as unrestricted gifts to The Whitworth Fund, make a tremendous difference in the lives of our students, the overwhelming majority of whom receive significant financial aid.

The Whitworth Foundation's varied assets ended the year valued at $18.7 million. These assets are part of the university's balance sheet, and ultimately they will be transferred to the endowment and are important for Whitworth's long-term financial strength.

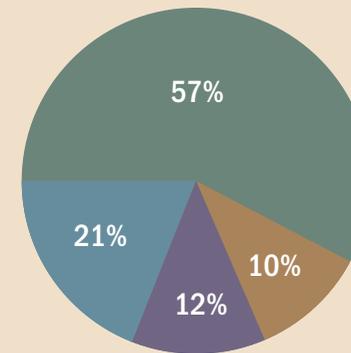

The endowment saw some recovery after the volatility of the previous two years and ended with a value of just over $80 million. One significant and much-appreciated addition to the endowment was a $500,000 estate bequest from a longtime trustee. Bequest intentions continue to be a growing source of long-term scholarship support for the university.

Overall, the university welcomed 2,781 students for fall term and ended the year with a small budget surplus. Vice President for Finance and Administration Brian Benzel says, "Lower-than-planned undergraduate enrollment last year and a higher-than-expected level of financial aid reduced our net tuition revenue. Additionally, annual giving fell below expected levels. The revenue shortfalls were offset by deferring facility improvement and equipment expenses, obtaining lower-than-expected debt service levels, and managing the budget with care."

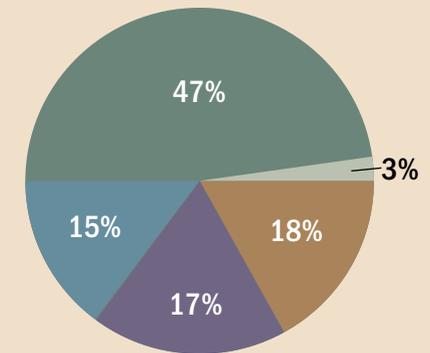

The continuing strong financial position of Whitworth University, documented in this annual report, is possible only because of your generous and steadfast commitment to our mission to honor God, follow Christ, and serve humanity. On behalf of our students, we thank you.
